President's Letter

I want to remind everyone that the SFMS Annual meeting is just around the corner. Please consider sending a representative from your club to this meeting. Meeting attendance is an important way for your club's voice to be heard.

There's two Workshops left for 2024, so if you are thinking about taking a class you'd better hurry up and register before all the classes are full.

One safety issue I'd like everyone to consider when on field trips this summer is heat stress. This time of year, the temperature and humidity across the southeast can be detrimental to your long- and short-term health. I know it's easy for heat related issues to sneak up on you when you're on the "mother lode" of a mineral pocket, but its important that you remain aware of the symptoms. There is a huge amount of information on Heat Stress on the internet. Please review this information and pas it along to your Field Trip Director and club members.

I hope to see many of you at the Annual Meeting

Best regards. Danny Griffin SFMS President

It's hard to believe we are planning the final event of our year! Our Annual Meeting is being hosted by the Georgia Mineral Society on the occasion of their Annual Club Picnic and Auction. Days are September 27-29, 2024. They are generously hosting all events: the Friday Social, Saturday Meeting, Saturday Luncheon (serving as our "Banquet") and Editor's Breakfast at no charge. Donations are welcome and encouraged, however, and early signups will give them better headcounts for meal preparation.

Registration form and Event info is attached later in this issue.

Thank you everyone who has made this a great year. Our William Holland workshop was one of our best in quite some time, Wild Acres weeks in August and September are coming up fast, so sign up now for a great week of fun and learning.

Have a wonderful rest of your summer and join us soon for a meeting or workshop,

AUGUST 2024

Safety Article, August, 24

Safety Chair Bob Green

Welcome to summer. We have had some hot weather and just went through a very wet session, not quite a normal summer. Usually, August is really dry, and we are now there.

Be careful when exposed to hot weather and thunderstorms. As all know, the hot weather can lead to serious health issues and all should be aware of the consequences of not taking care of your health during these times. Texas this past month suffered from a hurricane followed by hot weather. The hurricane had taken the power off-line in many places and with no power, several people succumbed due to the heat and high humidity. Working outside in weather like this can be painful. Many years ago, I was working on a plant site and watching a company pave the parking lot. The temperature on the front porch of our trailer was 108 degrees F. The paving guys had good access to cold water; all wore hard hats and appropriate loose clothing. (Also, safety glasses and steel toed shoes as required by our job site safety rules).

A couple of years later at another job site, our building was evacuated due to the heat. The upper floors of the building had a temperature of 119 degrees F. Having a planned approach to the work and taking appropriate cautions are required when doing hard work in these conditions.

Now, I realize that few of us have workplace monitors other than family members and our knowledge of when to say, enough, time to seek a cool place and rehydrate. My lawn looks like it is ready to be harvested for hay, so maybe this week, the temperature will remain comfortable in the upstate of South Carolina.

Now, thunderstorms can be scary and dangerous. Earlier this month we had one of those, flash-bang events. The windows rattled and after the storm passed, we checked outside for damage. We were lucky, this storm was a cloud-to-cloud lightning storm. In the past we have lost a tv, fried phone lines, damaged kitchen appliances because of two very close strikes. These were separated by about 10 years in two different houses.

Several years ago, while working in a five-story office building, we were watching the storm from inside our office. A large oak tree, some 75 feet away was struck and the tree exploded. Dropping limbs close to one of our fellow employees' new Thunderbird. So out he ran and moved his car much farther from the tree line and returned to the office. Of course, he was drenched, but safe as was his new car.

With the on-going weather issues, the floods seem to be worse than several years ago. And as the weather folk's admonishments of "turn around, don't drown", becomes a standard that reasonable folks need to follow. There are always some guy or lady that is in a hurry and tries to cross a flooded road and we always wish them success and no harm.

As always, be aware of the hazards around you and take appropriate precautions to protect yourself and your family.

Jim Reed and Laura Odria are getting everything ready for the first Wildacres week, August 12-18. I understand there are still openings in most of the classes, but a couple are getting tight. For August, stained glass and weave-tapdrop are full, but we have room in the other classes. September has room in everything except soap stone carving. If you're still thinking of joining us see the next page for a list of classes or go to https://www.sfmsworkshops.org and sign up today.

As mentioned last before, Highland Park has agreed to give us one of their new Intarsia machines and they included 120, 180, 260, 500, 800 and 1000 flat lap discs. We are offering this by raffle at the workshops. Each student will receive one free ticket. Additional tickets will be $5 ea or 5 for $20. We'll have the machine at each session and will do the drawing at the end of the September week. We already sold $525 worth at the WH Workshop. If you have question, please contact me at Education@southeastfed.org.

Rock Corner by David Liles (Knoxville G&MS)

Oolites

Hi Folks! I like to use this forum to discuss minerals and rocks I have encountered personally and on KGMS field trips. This month I am going to discuss Oolites.

Have you ever encountered a rock that appears to be a mass of little spheres cemented together? If so, you were probably looking at an oolite.

Oolites are sedimentary rocks. The individual spheres that make up the rock are known as ooids and rocks that contain them are given a textural qualifying term such as "oolitic limestone". It is thought that the ooids started out as small pieces of shell, plant, or rock that were suspended in ancient seas in moving water (wave or current action) that was supersaturated with dissolved minerals - the most common being calcium carbonate ($CaCO_3$). The rolling of the grains in the agitated water caused the dissolved minerals over time to crystallize on the grains almost in the same way a pearl forms in an oyster around a grain of sand or piece of shell. The motion of the water, and the small size of the ooids kept the ooids moving in suspension and the layers growing. As a result, the mineral layers were deposited more less evenly – thus creating spherical grains. Eventually, the ooids themselves settled in layers on the sea floor and were then compacted by additional layers of material and cemented together to form the rock known as Oolite.

To be technical, oolites consist of ooids of diameter 0.25 - 2 millimeters. If the grains are larger than 2 mm they are called pisolites.

See: en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Limestone and en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Oolite and en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Pisolite

My 1st experience finding Ololites was on a KGMS field trip to the Summerville Georgia Patty quarry, where the primary objective was to collect the lace and banded agate that the site is famous for. While there, I found quartz ooids formed by secondary replacement of the original calcite, amongst the agate. The ooids in these oolites are quite small. My examples do not react to acid. I dripped some muriatic acid on them, and there was no bubbling indicating that the quartz replacement process was extensive. While not as common or as interesting as the agate, they are present, and are collectable - in my opinion. Look for the characteristic beaded composition when turning over rocks in the field.

I think I have been to the Patty Quarry site at least six times at this point. It is a fun field trip! Go if you get the chance! For me the first few trips were to collect rocks in bulk, just to have examples. Subsequent trips were for selective upgrading of the specimens in my collection. I have cut and polished the agate from this site. Unfractured examples cut and polish well. I have not yet cut and polished my Summerville Oolites, but since they appear to be quartz like the agate, they should also cut and polish well. Quartz, with a Mohs hardness of 7 takes a fine polish.

My 2nd experience involves finding a nice cut Oolite (technically a Pisolite, due to the size of the grains) in the pile of rocks behind the kitchen at William Holland School of Lapidary in Young Harris, Georgia. Some years, I go there in June during "Federation Week" (Southeast Federation of Mineralogical Societies) to take the lapidary and jewelry classes offered, including but not limited to: Cabochons, flint knapping, silver casting, silver fabrication, intarsia, wire wrap, etc. W.H. is a great place to learn to work stone and make jewelry! Anyway, people donate rock collections to W.H., and those rocks not put on display or used in classes are deposited outside behind the cafeteria and are sold by the pound.

Rockhounds such as myself love digging through rocks and I have found some interesting stuff there, including my large cut pisolitic limestone. The spherical ooids in this pisolite are large in contrast with my other examples, so I have photographed this specimen, and modified the photographs with Photoshop, etc. to make modern abstract photographic "Rock Art", featuring the rounded ooid shapes.

And last, but not least, my 3rd Oolite experience involves finding some interesting examples in the Campbell County / Lafollette TN area, while squirrel and deer hunting on my in-law's farm. This property, known in the family as the "Doug Ridge", is located on Norris Lake at the end of Powder Mill Lane. The whole Powell Valley area following state route 63, from Interstate 75, through Caryville, Jacksboro, Lafollette and toward Cumberland Gap area bound by the Cumberland Plateau escarpment on the left and the Norris Lake/ Powell River to the right. The "Doug Ridge" property itself is on Norris Lake and within easy eyesight of the Cumberland Plateau escarpment. The "Doug Ridge" rises from lake level and continues up several hundred feet in height.

Hunting involves both sitting patiently against a tree or walking about in search of game. Anyway, during the hunting trips, I was also looking at the rocks, which on ridgetop were primarily broken chert in soil, plus quartz oolites. In contrast, at lake level, the predominant hillside rock was massive limestone, with occasional chert nodules, chert fragments, and limestone oolites. I did the acid tests to confirm. I find this to be very interesting!! Possibly an example of quartz replacement of limestone for the oolite rocks found up on top?

Remember, have fun and keep looking at the ground! That is where the rocks are!

Youth Coordinator Chair Mike Harrison & Nancy Roberts

Welcome Future Rockhound leaders and parents! Wow, this year is really zipping by fast! But here is August and of course, the birthstone of the month, Peridot!

Olivine is also the mineral of the gemstone known as "peridot." It is a yellow-green to green gemstone that is very popular in jewelry. The most valued colors are dark olive green and a bright lime green. These specimens are of the mineral forsterite because the iron-rich fayalite is usually a brownish, less desirable color.

Much of the world's peridot used in massproduction jewelry is mined at the San Carlos Reservation in Arizona. There, a few basalt flows containing nodules of granular olivine are the source of the peridot. Most of the stones produced there are a few carats or less in size and often contain visible crystals of chromite or other minerals. They are cut in Asia and returned to the United States in commercial jewelry.

Higher quality and larger peridot crystals are mined in Pakistan and Myanmar. There, crystals of olivine are found in metamorphic rocks. These are usually found in association with serpentine or dolomitic marble.

Chemical composition: Typically $(Mg, Fe)_2SiO_4$. Ca, Mn, and Ni rarely occupy the Mg and Fe positions.

The crystal system is Orthorhombic.

Mohs hardness of 6.5 to 7.0.

On other topics, how were the field trips you took your Future Rockhounds on this summer? It's not too late to get out there!

I do hope you plan to attend the annual meeting September 28, 2024. I plan to be there and if you are too, look me up and we will talk about all things youth activities and how Nancy and I can help!

One last thing, be sure to have your youth enter the SFMS Juniors' "Year in Rocks" Photo Contest!

The SFMS Youth Resources Committee is excited to announce that we are doing the "Year in Rocks" photo contest again for 2025. All club juniors are encouraged to submit a photo of rocks, minerals, gems, lapidary, and fossil items in the form of the year "2025". The winning photo will be used on the officer's contact lists page of the SFMS website. The deadline for entries is Friday, August 16, 2024. Please click the following link for rules and details:

Each submission must have a description of the items used to build the numbers in the year.
